IR	NO.
IT	NO.
LT	YES. The article 115 of the Code of Administrative Violations states that: " Violation the rules of protection and assistance of disabled persons and persons with reduced mobility when travelling by air incur fine from one thousand to one thousand Lithuanian litas to the head of the company ".
LU	(1) The Director of Civil Aviation is the competent authority for the application of the provisions relating to disabled persons and persons with reduced mobility when travelling by air. (2) The Minister for Transport by air may impose a fine of 2.500 € to 10.000 € to any air carrier or its agent or tour operator who refuses, on the grounds of the disability or the reduced mobility, to accept a reservation for a flight from Luxembourg airport or to embark a disabled person or a person with reduced mobility if that person has a ticket and reservation valid, unless the air carrier or its agent or tour operator could establish a cause of exemption listed in Article 4 of Regulation (EC) No 1107/2006 of the European Parliament and the Council of 5 July 2006 concerning the rights of disabled persons and persons with reduced mobility when travelling by air. (3) The Minister for Transport by air may impose a fine of 1.250 € to 5.000 € to any air carrier or its agent shall not have made available, in accessible formats and in at least the same languages as the information made available to other passengers, the safety rules applicable to the carriage of disabled persons and persons with reduced

	mobility, as well as any restrictions on their carriage or on that of their mobility equipment due to the size of the aircraft and any tour operator does not provide the safety rules and restrictions available for flights included in package holidays and package tours it organises, sells or offers for sale. (4) The fine should only be imposed if the air carrier or its agent or tour operator has previously been enabled to submit comments. To this purpose, they were invited by letter with return receipt to make inspection of the record and give their comments, all in a period of not less than a month. (5) The Minister's decisions are subject to appeal overruling the Administrative Court, within one month from the notification.
LV	YES. A Latvian Administrative Code has been established with regards to the DPs and PRMs. However, this Code is not yet into force.
MT	YES. Article 5 of the Civil Aviation (Rights of Disabled Persons and Persons with Reduced Mobility) Regulations (LN 234/07), as subsequently amended specifies the penalties applicable in case of an infringement to the Regulation. The sanctions imposed per infringement of the law can vary between 232.94 € and 1.164,69 € and between 582.34 € and 2.329,37 €. The Court decides on the amount of the fine on a case by case.
NL	Article 11.15, section b, item 7, of the Civil Aviation Act (enforcement action) and article 5:31 of the General administrative law Act (impose a duty backed by an 'astreinte'). The aim of that (reparatory) sanction is to remedy the infringement or to prevent a further infringement or a repetition of the infringement. Article 11.16, paragraph 1, section e, item 3, and paragraph 3, section e, of the Civil Aviation Act (administrative fine). Article 11.27 of the Civil Aviation Act (periodic publication of a list of companies which were given a administrative fine). With regard to an astreinte there is no fixed maximum. This (financial) preventive or reparatory sanction should be reasonable and proportional to the severity of the violation and the objective (article 5:32 and 5:32b) of the General Administrative Law Act. The administrative fine is of a more penal nature and is limited to 74.000 € per infringement of the Regulation. Reparatory sanctions give the Minister the power to do what should have been done according to the law, or to take away anything that has been done in conflict with the law ( i.e. in theory could buy wheelchairs for an airport and charge them for it, but this would never happen in practice). The law states that the Minister can levy a fine, but that this authority is delegated to the NEB, and effectively to individual inspectors. The sanction can also be used as a preventative measure – NEB can state that if an organisation does not comply within the coming year it will have to pay a sanction. Article 11.16 is the amendment which introduced the punitive fine. Article 11.27 required the publication of a list of companies which were given an administrative fine.
PL	No specific penalties for refusal of identification of a person as DP or PRM are foreseen, however, if a person who identify him/herself as DP or PRM is not assisted in accordance with the Regulation, sanctions may be imposed, after the implementation of the sanction system (see answer 2.6.).
PT	NO.
RO	NO.
SE	In case of discrimination, articles 3 and 4 of the Prohibition of Discrimination Act is applicable (regarding professional provision of goods, services or housing.) Complaints can be handled by the Swedish Disability Ombudsman or in a civil law case. There is a final legislation proposal from the government regarding the Civil Aviation Act. One chapter from the old Civil Aviation Act will according to the proposal be lifted out and form an own law. This gives the possibility of sanctions regarding article 3 and 4. The competent authority will probably be the national consumer authority, (the same as for the Regulation 261/2004 <sup>ii</sup> ).This new law will probably be effective 1 September 2010.
SL	NO.
SK	NO.

UK	NO. According, to the British NEB the issue of 'identification of a PRM' would not in itself form the basis of a complaint. There is no obligation that Operators should identify PRMs. A complaint would be about lack or failure of arrangements necessary to provide the assistance specified in the Regulation. 'Unjustified refusal of identification of a person as a PRM' may be part of a complaint, but would not be its basis.

ES	In order to meet applicable safety requirements (i.e. The Operative Circular of 04/01 of 22 June 2001 limits the number of PRMs to the number of available persons able to assist during an emergency evacuation. However, the Operative Circular 04/01 does not provide that any passenger shall provide assistance during an emergency evacuation. Operations Manuals companies must submit the required standards)/Due to the size of the aircraft/Due to an increased number of DPs or PRMs on the same flight.

FI	In order to meet applicable safety requirements (those which are provided by EASA or CAA, i.e.: Operations Manuals)/Due to the size of the aircraft or its doors which makes the embarkation physically impossible/Due to an appropriate aircraft equipment (i.e. in case the aircraft doesn't have an on-board wheelchair, related to the size of the aircraft)/Due to an increased number of DPs or PRMs on the same flight (if the number of PRMs exceeds the number of non PRMs). Operators can have more restrictive limitations in their Manuals.
FR	In order to meet applicable safety requirements (France has elaborated the instruction of 26 June 2008 concerning the technical regulation and administrative procedures applicable to air commercial transportation in order to help the airlines drafting their Exploitation Manuals)/Due to the size of the aircraft or its doors which makes the embarkation physically impossible/Due to the lack of appropriate personnel (i.e. in case the passenger with a wheelchair require a cabin crew member within the plane)/Due to an increased number of DPs and PRMs.

PL	YES. In order to meet applicable safety requirements /Due to the size of the aircraft or its doors which makes the embarkation physically impossible. As regards the increase number of DPs or PRM on the same flight, the Polish NEB mentions that in accordance with operations manuals of the air carriers the number of DPs and PRMs on board of the specific aircrafts may be limited. However, the limitations are due to safety reasons and therefore, the number of DPs or PRMs cannot be seen as separate and sole reason for refusal.
PT	YES. For safety reasons.
RO	YES. In order to meet applicable safety requirements/Due to the size of the aircraft or its doors which makes the embarkation physically impossible.
SE	YES. In order to meet applicable safety requirements (i.e. oxygen or wheelchair batteries and other types of equipment containing parts considered as dangerous goods), EU OPS (seating not allowed at emergency exit etc)/Health and safety rules (passengers may not be carried in steps or on board very small aircraft types)/Due to the size of the aircraft or its doors which makes the embarkation physically impossible (i.e. Jetstream 32; Manual lifting is impossible due to health and safety reasons; Not possible due to health and safety regulation to carry passengers in stairs and to lift them on-board. No cabin crew on aircraft with 19 seats or less).
SL	YES. For all mentioned reasons except in case of the lack of personnel.
SK	NS.
UK	YES. In order to meet safety requirements and due to the size of the aircraft. Are considered the safety requirement the following situations:

	EU-OPS:<sup>iii</sup> The JAA guidance material associated with EU-OPS provide for the maximum number of PRMs that may be carried on a flight. The UK CAA has provided guidance to UK air carriers in CAA FODCOM 49/2008 and notes that it does not expect UK carriers to be more restrictive than EU-OPS. Fitness to Fly: The Department for Transport's Access to Air Travel for Disabled Persons and Persons with Reduced Mobility – Code of Practice says at 3.18 that "Air carriers should only require disabled passengers to obtain a medical clearance in cases of a medical condition where it is clear that the passenger's safety or well being, or that of other passengers cannot be reasonably assured. Medical clearance forms should not be required just to prove a need for assistance." Where such medical clearance is not provided, Operators may refuse to accept a reservation. Authority for such refusal lies with the pilot, under article 77 Air Navigation Order 2005. Dangerous Goods: Operators may refuse a reservation if the passenger needs to travel with medical or mobility equipment that does not meet the criteria in The Air Navigation (Dangerous Goods) (Amendment) Regulations 2009 and the ICAO Technical Instructions for the Safe Transport of Dangerous Goods by Air. As regards the question related to an increased DPs and/or PRM on the same flight: UK's approach is to look at situations on a case by case basis, with guidance being that the number of PRMs should not exceed the number of able-bodied persons capable of assisting with an emergency evacuation.

UK	YES. The Civil Aviation (Access to Air Travel for Disabled Persons and Persons with Reduced Mobility) Regulations 2007 sets out the penalties for breaches of obligations in the Regulation. By virtue of Criminal Justice Act 1991 (Commencement No 3) Order 1992, fines on the standard scale are as follows: Level 1: £200; Level2: £500; Level3: £1000; Level4: £2500 and Level5: £5000. Articles 3, 4(1), 4(4), 5(1), 8(1), 8(5) and 13, attract Level 5 fines on summary conviction, or an unlimited fine on conviction on indictment. These 'either way' offences allow the defendant to elect between trial by jury on indictment in the Crown Court and summary trial in the Magistrates' Court. However, the election may be overruled by the court of first instance if the facts suggest that the sentencing powers of a Magistrates' Court would be inadequate to represent the seriousness of the offence. These fines are part of the criminal sanction regime and are relevant in cases where an Operator is prosecuted by the CAA. The parallel civil regime involves an individual making a claim for breach of the Regulation. The Civil Aviation (Access to Air Travel for Disabled Persons and Persons with Reduced Mobility) Regulations 2007 provides that remedies available in such proceedings are those which are available in the High Court. EHRC may support such claims.

IR	YES. However, the Irish NEB did receive a complaint, which related to an instance of forced disembarkation as distinct from a refusal to embark the passenger in the first place. The passenger, who had booked a return journey with the air carrier, unexpectedly required use of oxygen during his outbound flight. However, he failed to book oxygen for use on his return journey and when this was discovered he was asked to disembark the aircraft as the Captain would not take off unless he had the full MEL quota of oxygen at the disposal of other passengers. He would have been permitted to travel once he reserved oxygen and the required notice period for his reservation had elapsed. The timeframe involved was not acceptable to him as he had to return for personal reasons so he made his own arrangements.

RO	YES. The DP refused to present the Certificate of Disability in order to certify that the DP is able to travel alone. The case was solved by the Operator by finding another flight for the DP, served by another type of airplane.
SE	Only one case of denied boarding due change of aircraft to smaller aircraft than planned. Airline was advised to pay the passenger according to Regulation 261/2004. The Swedish NEB received a written complaint with reference to the Regulation 1107. The case revealed that the handling at the airport was not correct and that the passenger should have received denied boarding compensation. The NEB contacted the airline and was informed that they normally have good procedures for checking the size of the wheelchair against the size of the aircraft, but in this case they changed the operating carrier on all flights to a specific destination with short notice, and they missed the fact that some passengers were already confirmed. The airline did not question the arguments for paying out denied boarding compensation. According to the Swedish NEB, their role in this case was to advise the passenger about her rights and what rules that apply and were to turn for help. It also have a role to inform the airlines. The airline involved was Iberia. The NEB, in a first step interpreted that according to the Regulation it shall contact the Spanish NEB since Iberia has a Spanish AOC. (The Swedish NEB later learned that this interpretation of competent authority might be wrong, according to discussions at meetings with the Commission).

	The Swedish NEB translated the complaint from Swedish to English and sent it to the Spanish NEB together with their comments. Spain contacted the airline several times and finally received information that the staff at the airport had made an error and that the passenger should be reimbursed for the amount paid.
SL	NO.

UK	YES. Passengers have been refused reservation or embarkation for a number of reasons. Valid complaints have involved passengers being refused reservation because the Operator required 5 days' notice; because they believed a PRM should not travel alone; because they required a medical certificate at check-in; because they refused to carry mobility equipment. Cases may be solved if passengers pursue them to conclusion, but this does not happen often. According to the British NEB, some have unrealistic expectations about what can be done to resolve a complaint; some encounter delays or failure to respond when they contact Operators. This deters many from pursuing their complaint. In other cases the Operator is able to resolve the complaint directly with the PRM, for example by offering a free flight or shopping vouchers. For a variety of these reasons, no cases of refusal of reservation or embarkation have been concluded by means of EHRC's complaint handling process.

There was one case where a passenger asked whether an Operator was acting according to Regulation, when it stated that the person totally incapable of moving would need to be accompanied on intercontinental flights. According to the Finish NEB, the passenger in question was not totally incapable of moving and thus did not need an accompanying person. The passenger addressed the complaint/inquiry via email to the Finnish Transport Safety Agency. The complaint concerned a flight from Bangkok to Helsinki. The NEB interrogated the air carrier about their procedures on this matter. In the opinion of the NEB, this attitude was not in breach of the Regulation. The reasons of that requirement were the fact that according to the air carrier, they assist passengers with reduced mobility in moving to the toilet facilities. However, in case it involves actual lifting, the cabin crew are not able to provide such assistance, since they do not have the appropriate training and their own work safety would thus be endangered. According to the Finish NEB, the cabin crew can also provide help by supporting the passenger to get up, but the passenger must be able to move him/herself from the seat to the wheelchair, if he/she is to travel without an accompanying person. The cabin crew can also support the passenger when they are walking to the toilet. If the passenger needs help in the toilet facilities, he/she must have an accompanying person, since the cabin crew cannot assist there due to hygiene reasons.

SK	NO.
UK	YES. Transmission of information is vital to the proper working of all assistance under the Regulation. Failure of this transmission is at the root of many complaints. These can involve problems on flights because there is no record of passengers' requests when they arrive at check-in, or board the plane; incorrect IATA codes being used, leading to lack of appropriate assistance; and an absence of assistance at airports, particularly for passengers arriving on return flights. Correspondence with the Operator led to an offer of a free flight as a gesture of apology and an assurance that a new policy would be applied in future. The CAA report Accessible Air Travel considers issues with the transmission of information and CAA will be working with stakeholders to consider practical ways to improve this.

EL	YES. The Greek NEB had to handle four complaints. As regards the first complaint, the airline did not provide the appropriate training to its employees in order to accommodate a mute person. This was due to a communication failure between airline staff and the passenger. Other complaint concerned the handling of PRM by the employees of the provider of PRM service at Zakynthos airport. It was also a training problem. This complaint arrived 3 months after the incident, so it was impossible for the CAA to collect any information to investigate the case. The third complaint concerned the level of the service that was not provided in an appropriate way. According to the Greek NEB, it was difficult to collect any information about the case, especially regarding the transmission of information and the level of service, as the entity that provided the service to the PRM (Old Olympic) doesn't exist anymore, as it has gone to liquidation from 29th of June and the passenger didn't ask for support to the managing body of the airport. The last case concerned a medical case as the passenger had a very serious disease and needed medical oxygen that the commander didn't approve it, because the passenger did not have a certificate. All complaints have been sent to Headquarters of Hellenic Civil Aviation Authority. The NEB transmitted the complaint to the airport (the managing body) in order to investigate the case. They have contacted the airport handler (PRM service provider), requested records of training and information on the incident and have informed the NEB about the results in order to answer to the PRM. For these reasons, the Greek

	NEB did not imposed any penalties but chose to advise the handler to further train their personnel involved in PRM services.

Another case with the same airline followed, then the NEB provided the travel agency with the rules and the airline changed their position. The airline involved was Iberia. The NEB, in a first step interpreted that according to the Regulation it shall contact the Spanish NEB since Iberia have a Spanish AOC (The Swedish NEB later learned that this interpretation of competent authority might be wrong, according to discussions at meetings with the Commission). The Swedish NEB translated the complaint from Swedish to English and sent it to the Spanish NEB together with their comments. Spain contacted the airline several times and finally received information that the staff at the airport had made an error and that the passenger should be reimbursed for the amount paid. with an Operator led to an agreement to waive the seat charge. This did not represent a policy that would be applied in future.

UK	YES. Complaints have involved PRMs being charged for carriage of mobility equipment, including on the basis that the equipment was over their usual weight limit, and that it was not in a single piece of hold luggage. PRMs have been charged for the provision of appropriate seats, and have also been required to prove their need for such seats. This proof then incurs further expense. For a variety of the reasons described in 2.7, it has not been possible for many of these cases to be solved by EHRC's complaint handling process. However correspondence

PART 2

THE ROLE AND THE LIABILITY OF THE NATIONAL ENFORCEMENT BODIES

PART A

Q A 1.5 Could you please explain how the NEB supervises the correct identification of DPs and PRMs by the Operators?

AT	YES. Through analysis of complaints/various meetings with various organisations representing the DPs and PRMs, the airports and air carriers.
BE	YES. Only under complaints.
BG	YES. Only under complaints.
CY	NA.

CZ	YES. Under complaints.
DE	YES. In case of refusal of recognition, the NEB considers the case as specified in Article 2 a) of Regulation. The German NEB do not have knowledge yet of such refusal.
DK	YES. Through meetings between NEBs and aviation stakeholders (disability organizations, airlines, airports and tour operators). These kinds of meetings are hosted in Denmark since 2002.
EE	YES. Only under complaints. In such case the NEB would start broader investigations.
FI	YES. Under complaints. According to the NEB, the DPs and PRMs and/or the Operators will most likely contact the NEB to solve the situation.
FR	NA. This is not the role of the NEB.
EL	NS.
HU	YES. General power of investigation: the NEB can ask in case of complaint or at its own initiative information about the system identification.
IR	NO. According to the Irish NEB, the Regulation does not impose any mechanism to interrogate a claim of disability of any form. This was an observation, which was made when the Office answering to the questionnaire was first designated as the Irish NEB. The NEB has no knowledge of what consideration, if any, was given by the European Commission to the consequences for all stakeholders of having in effect a frame work which permits very minor or temporary occasions of disability - of any source - to be addressed by service providers i.e. air carriers and airports.
IT	YES. Through investigations/checks of contractual rules/severe auditing activities at airports.
LV	YES. Through NEBs inspections, (NEBs inspectors receive special training where correct identification is being taught).
LT	NO. (The answer of the NEB is "no practice". This includes that no initiatives coming from the NEB itself but waiting for complaints).
LU	NO. At present, no specific supervision based on medical certificate.
MT	YES. Via a close collaboration with Malta International Airport (MIA), which provides reports to the NEB/via regular meetings.
NL	YES. Only under complaints.
PL	YES. Under complaints.
PT	YES. Under complaints. Analysis case by case.
RO	NS.
SK	NO. It appears from answers of all NEBs that actually, there is no current supervision and/or enforcement of the Regulation.
SL	YES. Only under complaints (very rarely according to the NEB).
ES	YES. Through inspections in order to verify whether the air carrier has adjusted its procedures for the DPs and PRMs. Inspections are performed directly at the airports. The NEB handles claims from DPs and PRMs/ask managing body and airlines companies to report (the NEB did not received complaints yet at this regard).
SE	YES. Under complaints and through dialogue. Over ten years ago, the Swedish NEB started a focus group with representatives from six/eight disability organizations and the industry (airports and airlines). Between fifteen and twenty persons participate in this type of meetings, held twice a year. In addition, there is another group with representatives from all modes of transport and disability organisations participating at meetings twice a year. The members in the two groups form a network, and through them, the NEB receives questions from members from disability organizations. The NEB tries to have a proactive approach of work and solves general problems related to air travel and the Regulation, sometimes also in individual cases when passengers have problems with a flight reservation.

UK	YES. Through the Code of Practice (the Code has not an obligatory effect but are guidelines of best practices strongly encouraged by the UK government)/through a review of how legislation has been implemented in UK.

Q A 2.3 Could you please explain how the NEB supervises the rights of DPs and PRMs to be accepted for reservation and embarkation?

AT	YES. Through analysis of complaints/meetings with various organisations representing the DPs and PRMs, the airports and air carriers.

EL	NS.
HU	YES. Through regular checks on provided information and the acceptance of rights/demand of information to the Operators.
IR	According to the Irish NEB, it needs to be pointed out that the NEBs have been tasked with a complaint and enforcement role. The complaint role only emerges following a failure by the passenger to conclude the matter satisfactorily directly with the air carrier, airport management body, etc., in the first instance. According to the Irish NEB, the Regulation does not address nor has it been required for NEB to engage in any proactive roles.
IT	YES. Through investigations/checks of contractual rules/severe auditing activities at airports.

UK	YES. In case EHRC (handles complaints from consumers about the service in England, Scotland and Wales) and the CCNI (handles complaints in Northern Ireland) identifies a trend of non-compliance by an Operator, or evidence of wilful non-compliance, the matter may be referred to the NEB for further action. If it appears to the CAA that an Operator is in contravention of the Regulation and has failed to comply after suitable requests from the CAA to correct its policies, procedures or practices, then the CAA will consider initiating legal proceedings. The EHRC and CCNI can also ask the CAA to assist with technical safety expertise or if they have any difficulty in engaging with service providers. EHRC's ability to address breaches of the Regulation depends on individual passengers wishing to pursue a complaint, and bringing the complaint to EHRC's attention where justified and appropriate EHRC offers a conciliation service. According to the British NEB, this can facilitate agreements between parties and produce changes of policy from Operators. If no agreement is reached, EHRC may support an individual's claim at County Court.

Q A 3.3 Could you please explain how the NEB supervises the respect by the Operators of the obligation to offer to DPs and PRMs acceptable alternative solution?

PART B

Q B 1.2 Under which conditions the liability of the NEB is triggered under your national law (specific or general provisions)?

AT	NS.
BE	YES. General civil liability rules apply. The liability of NEBs under the Belgian law is that of a regular person.
BG	YES. Act on Liability by State and Municipalities.
CY	NA.
CZ	YES. In case of administrative offence (type of lawless behaviour).
DE	NS.

ES	YES. On the basis of the general provision of Law 30/92 of November, Title X on the liability of the Public Administration and of its authorities as well as of their personnel and services.
SE	NO. The liability of the NEB is not really regulated. It rather consists in a political sanction.
UK	A regulator could in theory incur liability in negligence. A claimant shall however establish: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• a duty of care owed by the regulator to a specific person or class of persons of which the claimant forms part;</li> <li>• a breach of that duty; and</li> <li>• an actual loss suffered by the claimant as a result of that breach of duty.</li> </ul> Alternatively, the claimant might seek to establish breach of statutory duty. The claimant would have to demonstrate:

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• there was a statutory duty to supervise;</li> <li>• the duty was imposed for the benefit of an identifiable class of persons;</li> <li>• the claimant is a member of that class; and</li> <li>• there has been a breach of the duty.</li> </ul> But the Courts recognise the governmental character of the supervisory process, that regulators have to balance competing interests and that they should be able to perform their functions without undue fear of legal proceedings. Generally, a regulator is unlikely to incur civil liability, particularly where the proximate cause of the loss is a failure by another party (the airport authority) to discharge its legal obligations.
